The Department of Commerce (DOC) is looking for tomorrow's leaders who have the vision, talent, skills and desire to succeed in a Senior Executive Service (SES) Candidate Development Program (CDP) designed to prepare future executives in mission critical occupations.

Vacancy Announcement Number: DOC SES CDP-04

Opening Date: May 26, 2004

Closing Date: June 25, 2004

Applications must be received by the closing date of this notice. Incomplete application packages or application packages received after the closing date will not receive further consideration. Applicants who previously applied to SES CDP-03, open from May 12, 2003 to June 28, 2003, need not reapply. However, those applicants must go online to select the series under which they wish to be considered.

Area of Consideration: DOC employees who are currently serving on a career or career-type appointment at the GS/GM-14/15 level or equivalent. Employees in the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) Alternative Personnel System or the Department's Demonstration Project are considered equivalent to the GS-14 level when the salary in the appropriate pay band equals or exceeds the pay at the GS-13 step 4 level and when the qualification requirements for the GS-14 and GS-15 levels are met.

Location: Washington, D.C. or other DOC locations in the United States.

About the Program: The Department's SES CDP is designed to provide a series of developmental experiences for a cadre of individuals who have high potential for assuming executive responsibilities in the future. These developmental experiences will include formal training and seminars, work assignments, and individual mentoring from current SES members.

Key Program Features:

- A 24-month part-time professional developmental program filled with challenging opportunities,
- Individual assessment to help develop a tailored executive development plan (EDP) based on the specific needs of each candidate to gain experience in the ECQs,
- Orientation of participants to major leadership issues,
- Mentoring by highly qualified senior executives specifically trained to assist candidates in successful completion of the CDP,
- One or more developmental assignment totaling at least 4 months designed to provide experience in the ECQs,
- Action Learning Projects designed to provide an opportunity for candidates to work on DOC cutting edge projects or issues,
- Periodic progress reports to offer feedback on the results of their individual performance and growth, and
- Referral for the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) certification of ECQs following successful completion of the program.

Typically, applicants selected for this program will possess a level of knowledge and experience sufficient to lead and evaluate administrative, business, legal, intellectual property, economic, or scientific program management related to the Department's mission requirements.

Certification: Candidates in the Department's CDP may not be placed in an SES position non-competitively. Successful completion of the CDP elements and requirements will result in a review by the CDP Program Manager and the Director for Human Resources Management of a candidate's record and EDP, which results in referral to an OPM Qualification Review Board (QRB) for certification. Certification at the end of the CDP is of benefit to candidates when applying for SES positions in the future because a second OPM QRB certification would not be necessary.

Participants may apply and be selected for SES or non-SES positions while in the CDP.
